A MESSAGE FROM THE NEW JERSEY STATE LIBRARIAN

I am excited to join the New Jersey State Library, and in particular to work with Adam and the rest of the dedicated staff at the Talking Book and Braille Center. I am coming to NJ from Minnesota where I also worked with a National Library Service library, the Minnesota Braille and Talking Book Library. Seeing services evolve over the years— from BARD to Books on Demand – has been rewarding, knowing that we are able to better serve the needs of all of our library patrons.

I invite you to reach out if you’d like to share your experience with the TBBC, or have thoughts on how we might improve services. I look forward to working with all of you.

Be safe and be well.

Thank you,

Jen

TELEPHONE MESSAGES – UPDATE

TBBC staff members are not currently on site at the library. Staff is only responding to voice mail messages left on our general number or on a particular staff member’s extension. We are returning all calls daily.

A problem has been identified that a patron’s phone is blocking our call because it is not coming directly from the library. Our information technology department is researching alternatives. We’d love to help you, but unfortunately, we will not be able to if our calls are not accepted or if we are not able to leave a message for you.

BRaille eREADer – SURVEY

On March 1st our Reader Services staff will begin calling patrons that we have on file as being Braille readers. They will discuss the Braille eReader and the pilot project TBBC has with the Library of Congress. We will mail out a Braille eReader unit and a Braille book on cartridge to all patrons who are interested in receiving one.

The eReader currently under review by TBBC was designed for NLS by HumanWare. The eReader can hold nearly the same amount of Braille books as we have in our entire library! This unit is only about a quarter of the size of the Braille page.

It has a Perkins-style keyboard, an 8-dot, 20-cell Braille display, and comes with a protective carrying case and lanyard.
The eReader can be used as a Braille display for not only JAWS 2020 and later, but also NVDA 2020.1, and Voiceover on Mac (using a USB connection). It can also be paired via Bluetooth to iOS devices as a Braille display. TBBC staff have found these features to be an attractive quality for a device that patrons will appreciate.

There is also a listserv for patrons to discuss and communicate their thoughts on the pilot.

If you are not a Braille reader when we call you, please let us know so that we can update your record with us.

For more information please call TBBC at 800-792-8322, extension 861 and a member of the Reader Services staff will return your call.

BRAILLE eREADER – UPDATE

For this pilot, TBBC was given a very limited number of Braille eReaders. With our next initiative, all of these units are accounted for at the moment.

We cannot swap out units at this time. Also, we have not been given extra components for these units. If you lose a connection cord, we do not have a replacement.

Please keep the box that we ship the unit in. Inside the box, there is a list of items included. The list is both in Braille and large print. If an issue arises with your unit, please contact the library and use the box the eReader came in to return the unit to TBBC.
NLS wants to review all issues related to the eReader. Once we return defective units to NLS, we will ask to secure a new unit for you.

For more information please call TBBC at 800-792-8322, extension 861 and a member of the Reader Services staff will return your call.
